Sault Tribe receiving $50,000 museum grant

VOLUNTEERS SOUGHT FOR MUSEUM STUDIES CLASSES

BY RICK SMITH

The director of the Institute of Museum and Library Services in Washington, D.C., recently announced Sault Tribe is one of 20 recipients of grants supporting development or improvement of indigenous museums beneficial to communities.

The federal Native American/Native Hawaiian Museum Services grants total $969,025. Sault Tribe received one of the four largest grants of $50,000 earmarked for a professional development project to acquaint and train Cultural Department staff and community volunteers with museum operations. The project consists of three college courses in museum services taught in the Sault through Central Michigan University at no cost to participants with a "capstone" field experience. The field experience is a tour of three different types of facilities in Mount Pleasant: the Ziibiwing Cultural Center, Clarke Historical Library and the CMU Museum of Cultural and Natural History.

According to the announcement, the combination of academic learning and field observations will provide an opportunity for tribal staff and volunteers to increase their skill level in museum services.

Angeline Bouley-Matson, director of tribal education services and manager of the professional development project, explained, "A capstone field experience is a trip to somewhere — like the three different museums — where you get a more in-depth view behind the scenes, into the archives. You get to put all of the things you learned in the classes to use by seeing real world workings. It's going to be awesome!"

Those interested in registering for the CMU classes in museum studies should contact Sylvia Shannon, secretary for the Sault Tribe Education Department, at 635-7784, ext. 56538 or send an e-mail to sshannon@saulttribe.net.

The grant becomes active in November, but the first class begins in January 2009. The courses will be taught on Saturdays, over a 9-month period, with each course meeting for eight sessions.

The only other American Indian government in the Great Lakes region to receive a museum services grant is the Lac Courte Oreilles Band of Lake Superior Chippewa Indians in Hayward, Wisc.

The band received a grant of $49,078 for programming applications. The funds will help support further development of the Migizi Cultural Resource Center as a central resource facility of the region for sharing Ojibwe cultural knowledge and history. The center also intends to offer educational and cultural programs by noted writers and storytellers as well as provide activities based on the four seasons.

Tribal entities in 12 other states also garnered grants with most ranging between around $42,000 to $49,000. Other recipients of $50,000 grants are the McGrath, Alaska, Native Village Council; the Miami Tribe of Oklahoma of Miami, Okla.; and the Citizen Potawatomi Nation of Shawnee, Okla.

The Institute of Museum and Library Services is the primary source of federal support for the nation's 122,000 libraries and 17,500 museums. Its stated mission is to create strong libraries and museums that connect people to information and ideas. It works at the national level, in coordination with state and local organizations, to sustain heritage, culture and knowledge; enhance learning and innovation; and support professional development. Over 400 jobs up for grabs at Greektown

BY BRENDA AUSTIN

In preparation for the January 2009 opening of Greektown Casino's new hotel and convention center, up to 400 new entry level, supervisory and management positions are now available.

Tish King, vice president of Human Resources at Greektown Casino, said, "We are looking for qualified candidates who would like a change and want to relocate."

A job fair was held recently at Kewadin Casino in Sault Ste. Marie offering on-site interviews for interested applicants. "We have a corporate transfer policy that states as long as they are an employee of Kewadin Casinos, one of our equity owner companies, or the Sault Tribe, they would process through our internal transfer policy. Positions are posted internally but employees must still interview for each posting they apply for," said King.

Positions include banquets, catering, hotel, engineers, purchasing, restaurant, security and valet. "Greektown is a great place to work and Detroit is a good place to live; there are many cultural venues and schools in the area. If you have never been to Detroit we encourage you to really take a look at it," she said.

For information about job postings contact Greektown Human Resource Supervisor Lauri Henry at (313) 223-2999, ext. 5026, or go to www.greektowncasino.com.

Nagelkerk nets record bluegill

TROPHY — Sault Tribe member April Nagelkerk caught a master angler record bluegill Sept. 10 while fishing in Perch Lake in Munising. The fish weighed in at 1.2 pounds, well over the 1 pound Master Angler requirement for catch-and-keep bluegills. Nagelkerk said she was using a crawler while fishing in a canoe. The Marquette DNR verified and witnessed the 11-inch catch and Nagelkerk is having the fish mounted to hang proudly next to her framed Master Angler Certificate.

Rental assistance waiting list open

The Sault Tribe Housing Authority is pleased to announce we are opening the waiting list for our Rental Assistance Program. The program provides rent subsidies for income qualified working families. This will be on a first-come, first-served basis as we have a limited amount of vouchers available.

This is a tenant-based program where the tenant is subsidized, not the rental unit. The participant must find their own housing within the seven county service area. This allows participants to select a rental unit that meets their needs and the program requirements. Participants will be required to pay 25 percent of their adjusted income to the landlord and the Housing Authority will pay the remainder up to the fair market rent for that area. The rental unit must pass a housing quality standards inspection prior to leasing.

Sault Tribe Housing Authority recognizes that many needs cannot be met by the existing low-income rental program. This new program was created to expand housing opportunities while meeting unique needs of tribal families, thus providing rental assistance off trust land. The funding for this program is limited. We will be able to assist the family for a maximum of two years. During the two years we will be able to work with the family with homeownership counseling and advocacy if they are interested.

For more information or an application, contact Heather Alstrom at 495-1450 or (800) 794-4072.

Kewadin Casino is offering full refunds for those who purchased tickets to the show. Customers tickets will also be honored for the rescheduled 2009 performance. To receive a refund, customers can contact the Kewadin Casino box office at 1-800-KEWADIN (539-2346). Box office hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday-Sunday. Jeff Dunham, his management, agency and Kewadin Casinos apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused. "We look forward to announcing a rescheduled date for this show in the coming months," said McKerchie.

Albert Goudreau wins Ipod Nano, paper to improve postal delivery

SAULT STE. MARIE — The winner of the Win Awenen Nisitotung's "Win an Ipod Nano" promotion is Albert Goudreau from Mt. Pleasant, Mich. He is the owner of a brand new Ipod Nano digital music player.

By returning the Sault Tribe's free newspaper subscription acceptance form to us, the first 300 tribal members returning the form qualified to win a digital music player.

Those who returned the subscription card, assisted the Sault Tribe Communications Department with improving the delivery of our community's newspaper.

To qualify the tribal newspaper for a periodical postage rate, the U.S. Post Office requires written documentation from at least half of those on the mailing list stating they agree to receive a free subscription. Qualifying our newspaper as a periodical will improve delivery time and help reduce postage costs. Thanks to the response of over 10,000 members, we have finally met our goal and we can now proceed forward in the USPS application process.

A special thanks goes out to all those members who participated in the promotion — thank you for helping us help all of you and our tribe.

Special Report

Restructuring update to our membership

SAULT TRIBE CHAIRMAN DARWIN "JOE" MCCOY AND BOARD OF DIRECTORS

This article is to inform members about the changes that have been made, where we stand with our projected 2008 deficit and where we anticipate being in 2009.

The chairman, along with the board of directors and executive staff, have been working diligently over the course of the past several months to zero out the projected $15 million deficit for 2008. Several changes have been made, including elimination of non-essential positions, suspension of employment benefits, suspension of membership services, elimination of satellite health clinics. In addition, there will be no supplementation of the annual elders fund. The decisions that have been made, and that will continue to be made until we zero out the deficit, have not been easy for the board members and executive staff. The condition of our tribe's finances have been deteriorating for several years; making changes is necessary to regain financial stability.

Many of the program and employment benefit suspensions should be considered temporary. Once financial stability is regained, the board of directors will reevaluate suspended programs and employment benefits to determine, based on need and available resources, which services will be reinstated. Prior to reinstatement, a comprehensive analysis will be conducted on each program and employment benefit to ensure that the reinstated benefits are truly a need of our membership and team members. This analysis will assist in determining that our method of delivery is efficient and cost effective.

Currently, we receive a number of grants and federal funds that assist in sustaining the level of services we offer. Sault Tribe's membership services budget for 2008 totaled $49,182,151. Of this amount, $22,356,980 comes from tribal sources while we receive $26,825,171 for membership services from federal revenue sources (grants), Indian Health Services, Bureau of Indian Affairs and state grants.

Sault Tribe owns and operates large health and community centers in Sault Ste. Marie, St. Ignace, Manistique and Munising. Locations of these centers were determined by membership need. While members may have to drive from outlying areas to reach these sites, the services we are able to provide them are either free of charge or at a highly reduced rate. We invested $4,300,000 in construction of the Manistique Tribal Center, which has an estimated annual operating budget of $2,947,504. Construction renovations for our Munising Tribal Center investment totaled $3,400,000, which has an estimated annual operating budget of $1,130,391. Sault Ste. Marie Tribal Health Clinic was constructed at the cost of $7,900,000. This is our largest estimated annual operating budget, in the amount of $11,571,704. The St. Ignace tribal clinic is smaller but has an annual operating budget of $3,201,498.

For health services such as clinical/medical, lab/phlebotomy, dental, optical, pharmacy, traditional medicine, audiology, community health nursing, community health technicians, diabetes grant program services and nutrition services, to name a few, for 2008, Manistique Tribal Center had approximately 8,186 patient visits; Munising Tribal Center had approximately 3,288 patient visits, Sault Tribal Center had approximately 42,915 patient visits and St. Ignace Tribal Center had approximately 12,866 patient visits.

The board of directors would like to take this opportunity to clarify the intent of the annual elder payment from the Land Claims Funds. The original intent of the fund was to provide elders a stipend from the accrued annual interest. In this time of nationwide economic trouble, we simply cannot afford to supplement that fund. Per Resolution Number 98-47, we will pay only the interest earned from this fund. In the past, we gave our elders more than the interest only payment because we had the financial resources to do so. While we would like to continue to supplement the elders' annual payment, at this time it is just not possible to do so. The chairman and board of directors estimate the next payment to be between $600 and $703. The exact amount will not be known until later in the year as it is dependent on the number of elders, which has increased for 2009 and the interest earned on the Land Claims Fund. The entire amount of the next payment will be considered tax-free, per the directive received from the Internal Revenue Service in 1999.

Our casinos have also been impacted by our financial situation. There have been many budget and cost cutting measures implemented throughout the five northern casinos over the past several months. These changes, although difficult, were necessary. With the current economic conditions, our revenues have not shown any significant gains in recent years, while our expenses have continued to escalate resulting in a weaker bottom line. There have been $4 million in overall reductions within our casinos and enterprises, which will assist in relieving some of the bank requirements, as well as allow us to demonstrate that we can operate more efficiently and perform at a higher level. This will enhance the opportunity for us to invest back into our businesses, moving forward in a positive direction.

Casino revenues have decreased due to increased competition and downturn in the state and national economy. Our tribe relies on casino revenues to provide funding for a wide variety of services to our membership and team members within the seven-county service area. As it stands today, with bank restrictions and other requirements, our tribe anticipates $17 million in revenue for the next two years from our casino profits. These funds are intended for governmental purposes, including costs of operations and providing membership services. At the same time, reductions have been reviewed and implemented and the board of directors has directed our management team to develop revenue projections and plans for increasing our bottom line revenues.

For 2008, we still have an $8 million deficit. The chairman and board of directors are pursuing a $5 million loan to help with 2008 and we are borrowing internal fund reserves to assist in balancing out at the end of the year. For 2009, with the numerous changes made to date, we are at approximately $1.5 million deficit.

As leaders, we will continue to look at our operations to ensure that our businesses are operating at maximum efficiency and we will continue to look for ways to increase revenue and regain strong financial stability. The chairman, board of directors and executive staff would like to take this opportunity to acknowledge our team members who are stepping up and taking on the task at hand. We are grateful for your continued dedication and support, and your ability and willingness to adapt to the many changes occurring. We do see a positive light at the end of the tunnel and appreciate your patience and understanding through this very difficult time.

Summit: Supporting families, improving minority early childhood development

BY RICK SMITH

Parents and professionals concerned with early childhood development among American Indians in the eastern Upper Peninsula of Michigan met in Sault Ste. Marie on Sept. 11 for exploratory talks about needs and making improvements.

The gathering was the first of nine "children of color community conversations" set from Sept. 11 to Sept. 19 throughout the state in support of American Indian families; rural, low income families in northern lower Michigan; Indians, Afro-Americans and Hispanics in urban southeast Michigan; and Afro-Americans as well as migrants in southwest Michigan.

The events took place under the auspices of the Early Childhood Investment Corporation (ECIC), a public corporation with the goal of seeing "that every young child in Michigan has a Great Start and arrives at the kindergarten door healthy and ready to succeed in school, with parents who are committed to educational achievement." Great Start is an ECIC initiative. According to information from the organization, "The purpose of Great Start is to assure a coordinated system of community resources and supports to help all Michigan families provide a great start for their children from birth to age 5."

Participants in the Sault summit identified major impediments to sound early childhood development in the eastern U.P. Some of those impediments are lack of access to health services (especially dental services), poverty, poor economic conditions, lack of mass transportation, lack of access to day care, remoteness, undiagnosed mental illnesses, homeless situations and poor inter-agency communications. They also discussed ideas for removing barriers to collaboration, developing a more comprehensive and encompassing system to serve all children and their families in the region along with other topics.

Among those attending the meeting were representatives from the EUP Great Start Collaborative, Michigan Department of Human Services, Hiawatha Behavioral Health, Hannahville Head Start, Sault Tribe, Bay Mills Indian Community, EUP Intermediate School District, Chippewa County, Inter-Tribal Council of Michigan Inc., Lake Superior

State University, Lac Vieux Desert Band of Lake Superior Chippewa, Sault Area Public Schools, Bay Mills Community College and the Chippewa-Luce-Mackinac Community Action Agency.

Valora Washington

"It's a really powerful group in this room," noted Velora Washington while speaking to the assemblage. Washington is president of the Community Advocates for Young Learners Institute based in Massachusetts. She conducted the dialogue and invited all assembled to review a coming draft summary she will write on lessons learned from the summits and offer a blueprint for action on behalf of children and families.

"When finalized, the paper will be used as a basis for the state ECIC and local Great Start collaborative groups to take action to work with communities of color across the state," said Washington. "I am writing it for the ECIC office in Lansing. Listening to, and engaging with, community members and activists are essential for 'representative leadership' in our democracy. I am delighted that ECIC has chosen this approach."

"Real change, though, is going to come from here," Washington told those attending the Sault summit. "It's not going to come out of Lansing, it's going to come from all of you."

EUP Great Start Collaborative helps ready youth for school

BY RICK SMITH

An eastern Upper Peninsula network of organizations, government agencies, educational entities, financial institutions, tribal agencies, government leaders and parents aim to see that all children in the area begin kindergarten safe, healthy and ready to succeed in school and life. It is called the EUP Great Start Collaborative.

The collaborative was started with the purpose of assuring a coordinated system of community resources and support are available and made known to families who need them. It focuses on fostering the best possible support for children, from newborns to 5-year-olds, to ensure they have basic needs, physical and social-emotional health, parental education and family support, early care and education.

To learn more about the collaborative and other resources for kids and their families, visit the Eastern Upper Peninsula Intermediate School District Web site at www.eup.k12.mi.us and, underneath "Site Shortcuts," click on "Early Childhood," on the next page, click on the link for the EUP Great Start Collaborative.

You will notice links to seven other programs and services offered through the EUP Intermediate School District to benefit the very young. All of these links contain information for parents and professionals.

Of special interest to parents is a link titled "EUP Great Start Parent Coalitions."

There are four parent coalitions in the EUP. Essentially, these coalitions are groups of parents who help guide the collaborative services. To be a member of a parent coalition you must be a parent of a child living in Chippewa, Luce or Mackinac counties and attend parent coalition meetings.

These parent coalitions are important to the EUP Great Start Collaborative. In fact, the collaborative is required to have at least 20 percent of their membership composed of parents who represent the diversity of the area.

The EUP Great Start Parent

Coalition has an array of focus groups pertaining to early childhood listed on the site.

To make inquiries about the coalitions, contact one of the facilitators — Chasidy Keyser in Chippewa County at 248-2950 or chasidykeyser@yahoo.com; Susan Jewell in Luce County at 293-3938 or susanjewell79@hotmail.com; or Heather Bird in Mackinac County at 643-0096 or allaboutkids01@yahoo.com.

Questions may also be directed to Gary W. Davis, EUP Great Start Collaborative director, P.O. Box 883 or 315 Armory Place, Sault Ste. Marie, MI 49783, phone 632-3373 extension 119 or send e-mail to gDavis@eup.k12.mi.us.

If one would like to receive electronic newsletters and e-mail containing information on community events, play-groups, parent/child information or on other matters, one can sign up for them on the Web site at the bottom of the parent coalition page.

Bias & Fabry, PLLC begin new law practice

BY BRENDA AUSTIN

Attorneys James Bias, Jocelyn Fabry and legal assistant Traci Swan recently joined forces to open a new law office in downtown Sault Ste. Marie. With their diverse legal experience and individual specialties they are well equipped to assist clients with many of their legal needs.

Former employees of the Sault Tribe, the team markets themselves as attorneys and counselors. "The tribe employed us all for some time before we made the decision that it was the right time to try something different. While many lawyers view their role as merely combatants in an adversarial battle, at Bias & Fabry we recognize the role of attorney should be much more," said Bias. "With our extensive trial experience, we have the skills to vigorously litigate claims once they arise and have the knowledge and foresight to help clients avoid legal problems before they occur. This saves time, money and the frustration of unnecessary involvement in the legal system."

Fabry, who is a Sault Tribe member, is currently concentrating on estate planning. "Her focus is on structuring estates for people so they have something of their estate left intact for their children in the event they have a catastrophic illness. It had become more important with the rules the federal government has. They can go back after your death and take assets to cover medical bills," Bias said. "We are putting together some packages for estate planning to make that an affordable option for our clients."

Bias & Fabry will also offer legal services for wills, trust and estate planning, bankruptcy, divorce, custody and visitation, business formation and litigation, real estate law, personal injury, construction law and felony and misdemeanor criminal proceedings. "Almost every case we have the two of us work on together giving us the opportunity for feedback from each other. Many attorneys who are solo practitioners will tell you one of the hardest things is not having someone else to bounce ideas off of, and get ideas from, and to think of things from perhaps an angle you hadn't considered," Bias said.

Fabry said, "As former prosecuting attorneys for Sault Tribe we have the unique insight to anticipate strategies and prepare an effective defense for our clients who are involved in the criminal justice system. Bias' practice will focus not only on criminal defense, but also on family law. Given the expertise he gained working for the Tribe in child welfare cases, James' foundation for family law matters, such as custody and divorce, is second-to-none."

SSI survivors' benefits tools

BY SALLY GUAY, SOCIAL SECURITY DISTRICT MANAGER IN ESCANABA MICHIGAN

You might worry about how to protect your family if something suddenly happens to you. But you probably have life insurance you haven't even thought about.

If you are working and paying into Social Security, your family may qualify for Social Security benefits if you die. You see, some of the Social Security taxes you pay go toward survivors insurance. In fact, its value may be more than the value of any other life insurance you may have.

If you die, your family could be eligible for monthly benefits based on your earnings. Your family members who might qualify include your minor children and your spouse. Similarly, if your spouse is working and dies, you and your children may qualify for benefits on your spouse's record. More than six million people currently receive Social Security survivors' benefits.

How it works: You can earn up to four Social Security credits each year. When you have earned $4,200, you have earned your four credits for the year.

No one needs more than 40 credits (10 years of work) to be eligible for any Social Security benefit.

At www.socialsecurity.gov/survivorplan you will find three different calculators that will help you estimate how much your family might be eligible to receive.

Naubinway museum hopes to partner with tribe

Top of the Lake Snowmobile Museum

BY BRENDA AUSTIN

Top of the Lake Snowmobile Museum is the only one of its kind in the state. Located in Naubinway, in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, the museum is home to 69 different makes, models and years of "sleds."

Chairperson of the non-profit corporation, Charlie Vallier, said, "Vintage and antique snowmobiles have been my passion for years. I have always wanted a snowmobile museum. There has been a local snowmobile show in Naubinway for the past 16 years and about four years ago we decided that since Naubinway is so well known in Michigan for its snowmobile show what better place to have a museum?"

The museum has a 12-member board of directors who meet about once every two months. "We have a good relationship with the tribe and the local Naubinway Business Association, Garfield Township and Mackinac County. They are all 100 percent supportive of the museum," said Vallier.

A group of 23 snowmobile enthusiasts have sleds displayed in the museum. "I have over 200 sleds myself and the other collectors have between 20 to 150 each. We don't have room to display them all so about once a year we bring in new ones and store some of those already on display," he said.

The museum offers prototypes such as the 1050 Dupras and 1967 Mercury 200, 3-cylinder race sled. The museum also has memorabilia on display and a small gift shop.

Vallier has been collecting snowmobiles since 1971 when he was done with his service in the Army. He has traveled to Minnesota and New Hampshire to bring more additions to his collection and has had sleds given to him over the years. Vallier said, "People sometimes donate sleds to the museum they no longer want and that are not worth much. We use them for raffle items; last year we raffled a 1967 Polaris Colt and made $3,200 to help keep the lights on and the rent paid."

The museum's board of directors would like to see an arrangement made between the tribe, the local merchant's association and the museum to house all three entities in a multi-purpose building. The proposed project would also include a Sault Tribe elder meeting center and space for the local unit representative to hold office hours.

Unit II Representative Lana Causley said, "The endeavor that the Naubinway snowmobile museum participants have taken on will hugely benefit our community. We thank the elders in Naubinway for the direction and the tribe for donating the land in order to accomplish the goal of building the museum."

The museum is open all year and offers guided tours after hours by appointment. Hours of operation are Thursday through Monday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Vallier is asking tribal members who have pictures of old rear mounted engine machines working on the ice to contact him to make arrangements to have a copy made for display in the museum.

To view a one-minute video about the museum visit www.topofthelake.org and click on the snowmobile page.

Visit the museum at W11595 Center St. in Naubinway, located 42 miles west of the Mackinac Bridge on US-2. For more information, call (906) 477-6298. For after-hour appointments call (906) 477-6192.

Bailey has long range plans for fledgling business

Sault Tribe member Andy Bailey is owner and operator of Bailey Electric, Inc., a two-year-old state licensed and insured concern based in Hessel, Mich.

BY RICK SMITH

Sault Tribe member Andy Bailey is a skilled entrepreneur gaining a solid reputation in northern Michigan and the eastern Upper Peninsula. As the owner and operator of Bailey Electric, Inc., a two-year-old concern based out of Hessel, Mich., Bailey has been helping folks and businesses with his services on jobs big and small.

Bailey got his start in the field 18 years ago sweeping and cleaning up after master electricians on Mackinac Island. He became a registered apprentice after his first year on the job, about five years later he joined the ranks of electrical journeymen and acquired his state credentials as a master electrician about 2004.

"I spent time working with contractors on Mackinac Island, Pickford and the Sault.

Later, I got the traveling bug and worked with companies in New Hampshire, Indiana, Wisconsin and the lower-peninsula. I returned to the Sault where I worked for three years before striking out on my own," said Bailey. A wide variety of experience on jobs large and small bolstered Bailey's confidence in going into business on his own.

Since then, he says demand for his services has been evenly split between residential and commercial clients. His business has doubled since the first year he hung his shingle. "My wife is a big part of it, I couldn't do it without her. She takes care of our designs for all of our company graphics, advertising, administrative duties, bookkeeping, just the paperwork alone with the state is a huge responsibility that can get quite confusing." But, says Bailey, his wife, Debbie, takes care of it all with what seems to be minimal difficulty. "She's amazing."

Bailey notes he one day wants to pass the business on to his children, Drew, 5, and Brooke, 2. "So that I can retire one of these days," he said.

Elderly Advisory Committee

Aug. 25 meeting summary

SUBMITTED BY PHYLLIS COLEGROVE

A quorum was present with 10 regular voting members and one alternate member participating. Robert St. Andrew was the only regular voting member absent. Six alternate members were in attendance. Board members present were Lana Causley and Shirley Petosky. Others in attendance were staff members Holly Kibble, Courtney Kachur, Lona Stewart, Bonnie Culfa, Tina Fox, Marlene Glaesmann and guest, Ann Miller.

The agenda was amended to allow the Health Division staff to make their presentation and leave. The balance of the agenda was to be followed as time permitted, tabling some items and an anticipated adjournment around 2 p.m.

The draft minutes from the July 28 meeting were approved with three corrections.

Bonnie Culfa discussed with the group about the status of dental and medical services relative to personnel shortages, ability to schedule appointments and changes in services, if any, due to recent budgetary constraints. Culfa discussed each of the items and offered her best understanding of the status of each and fielded questions from committee members. Tina Fox and Marlene Glaesmann gave reports on activities within their areas of responsibility.

Old business: Courtney Kachur passed out copies of the proposed revised bylaws for the Elderly Advisory Committee and for each of the unit subcommittees. He said the proposed changes standardize the subcommittee bylaws and make them consistent with the bylaws of the Elderly Advisory Committee. Members are to take their subcommittee's copies of amended bylaws to present at their next meeting. Any concerns resulting from the review at the subcommittee level will be discussed at the September committee meeting. The proposed changes to the Elderly Advisory Committee bylaws were approved with the request that they be brought to the next meeting of the board of directors for its approval and adoption; no response has been received from the board regarding an committee proposed personal information checklist/packet.

New business: Tribal Vice-Chairwoman Lana Causley passed out a report from tribal Chairman McCoy, which addresses all the issues presented to him at the August meeting. Since the committee members were just getting the material and didn't have any time to review it, it was suggested by the committee chairman that comment and discussion on the report be withheld until the September meeting, allowing each member to take it home and digest the contents. Causley did say the tribal chairman wanted to attend this meeting but was out of town and it is his intent to attend each committee meeting his schedule allows.

The committee chair reported he was unaware of any progress on the proposed new Constitution; it was reported only the summary of the July meeting minutes would be submitted for inclusion in the next edition of the newspaper.

Notice was given that the next meeting of the Michigan Indian Elders Association will be in Petoskey, hosted by the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians, starting Oct. 6 and concluding on Oct. 8.

Lana Causley and Petosky fielded several questions and offered information they had on issues, most dealt with ramifications of the current budgetary crisis.

Kibble introduced Joan Karlson as the new alternate member from Unit V Munising; she also reported she has finalized the elders' needs assessment and will present it to the tribal board; she indicated the mileage reimbursement rate has been increased to $0.585 per mile and restrictions have been placed on travel for everyone; she said subsidies for attendance at the next, and possibly future, MIEA conferences will be limited to the three board-approved delegates, Ilene Moses, Jerry Miller and Bob Menard. She suggested perhaps area subcommittees might want to pick up the tab for some of their members.

Agenda item "What's going on in your unit?" was tabled until next meeting.

There were no questions or comments from the audience.

The next regular meeting was set for Sept. 22, 2008, at the Newberry Community Center at 12:30 p.m.

The meeting adjourned at 2:30 p.m.

New initiative helps Medicare caregivers

This September, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) launched Ask Medicare, a new initiative to help family caregivers – those who are family members or friends who help people with Medicare – access and use valuable healthcare information, services and resources.

More than 44 million Americans provide care to a loved one, friend or neighbor, valued in economic terms at $350 billion annually, according to a recent report by AARP. The new initiative provides caregivers with a one-stop Web page that provides easy access to useful information about Medicare and other essential resources to help with caregiving.

Most caregivers do not think of or identify themselves as caregivers; yet, so many of the resources available to them use that term. "If a person helping someone on Medicare does not relate to the term 'caregiver,' they may miss a lot of resources," said Weems.

Many family caregivers see their roles of providing help or service to someone they care about as simply "the right thing to do" because the person is a family member or a friend. Family caregivers provide help that includes: buying groceries; picking up prescriptions; taking someone to the doctor; helping an elderly parent navigate benefits and plan for the future; looking after someone with a disease or disability; or caring for a parent in their home.

The Ask Medicare Web site will provide links to key partner organizations that assist caregivers and beneficiaries, and present personal stories from caregivers in the community. Support information and tools to help caregivers address common problems will also be available. As part of the initiative, CMS will launch an e-newsletter for caregivers that will deliver information into subscribers' email boxes.

For more information about Medicare's new caregiver initiative, please visit: www.medicare.gov/caregivers.

McDowell: Plan protects consumers, cracks down on gas gouging

LANSING – With gas prices continuing to hover near the $4 mark, State Representative Gary McDowell (D-Rudyard) on Sept. 17 voted for a plan that will protect working families from being taken advantage of at the pump by cracking down on gas gouging by unscrupulous gas station owners. The move comes in the wake of some gas stations hiking gas prices to more than $5 last month as Hurricane Ike made landfall in Texas.

"Residents across the state are being taken advantage of, and this plan will help put an end to that," McDowell said. "In these difficult economic times, our working families are already pumping far too much of their paychecks into their gas tanks. We need to take action on those few gas station owners who gouge our residents just to make a quick buck."

The current average for a gallon of regular gas is $4.10, according to the AAA Daily Fuel Gauge Report. That's a 24-cent increase from a month ago, and an increase of $1.13 from a year ago. Mid-September, as Hurricane Ike ravaged the Gulf Coast, some parts of the state recorded gas prices spiking to over $5 per gallon.

With more than two months left in the hurricane season, which officially ends Nov. 30, Michigan lawmakers took action to protect consumers from more incidents of gas gouging. The plan passed by the House would give the Attorney General's Office additional tools to speed up investigations of alleged gas gouging and expand the state's ability to recover damages for consumers victimized by gas gouging. The plan also clearly defines gas gouging in Michigan's Consumer Protection Act to make it easier for the Attorney General's Office to prosecute violators.

"The inflated prices we saw last week were textbook examples of gas gouging – and that's a crime," McDowell said. "The vast majority of gas station owners are responsible and hard-working residents who follow the rules. This plan will crack down on the few bad apples that would rather squeeze a few extra dollars from our residents."

IRS identifies most common errors delaying stimulus payments

DETROIT — Those waiting for an economic stimulus payment and those who have yet to file can avoid common errors that may delay their payment. The Internal Revenue Service, which is still issuing economic stimulus payments, has identified several trends in filing errors.

The IRS has issued 90 percent of the economic stimulus payments and will continue to issue payments through December. Taxpayers must file a 2007 tax return by Oct. 15 in order to receive the economic stimulus payment this year. The IRS estimates that as of late June over 150,000 potentially eligible Michigan residents had not filed.

Here's how to avoid common mistakes:

Some people are filing more than one tax return in an effort to receive a stimulus payment, which could further delay their stimulus payment. The IRS is concerned there will be more multiple filings as the Oct. 15 deadline approaches for filing a return in 2008.

Some filers are listing their monthly income instead of annual income. The qualifying income required by law is at least $3,000 in benefits from Social Security, Veterans Affairs and Railroad Retirement, earned income or combat pay.

Tax liability is the net amount of federal income taxes paid after deductions and credits. Taxpayers who have either small amounts of tax liability or no tax liability are getting smaller stimulus payments than they expected. In some cases, they are receiving none at all. If there is no tax liability but at least $3,000 of "qualifying income," they would be eligible for $300 ($600 for married couples.) Generally, the law provided for a maximum stimulus payment of $600 ($1,200 for married couples) or an amount equal to a taxpayer's tax liability, whichever was less.

Generally, people cannot file an amended return solely to get an economic stimulus payment unless they are a retiree, veteran or have other "qualifying income." While amended returns will be processed to correct the income, deductions and income tax as appropriate, the economic stimulus payment amount will not be adjusted based on an amended return.

People must use their most current address in order to receive a timely payment. People who change addresses after filing should complete Form 8822 and a change of address card with the U.S. Postal Service.

The quickest and easiest way to track the status of a payment is to go to "Where's My Economic Stimulus Payment?" on www.IRS.gov. The online tool will report when the payment will be issued. People will need their Social Security number, their filing status and the number of exemptions claimed on their tax return to use this tool.

The economic stimulus payment begins to phase out for individuals whose income is $75,000 or more and for joint returns with income of $150,000 or more. To be eligible, a person cannot be a dependent or eligible to be a dependent of another person. To be eligible, an individual must have a valid Social Security number unless his or her spouse serves in the military.

Tribal member wants more ducks

The Sault Tribe needs to explain to members who enjoy waterfowl hunting and were looking forward to an expanded season and bag limits why, now that the consent agreement has been signed, we must continue to follow Michigan DNR regulations.

Neighboring Michigan tribes are enjoying duck seasons that run from mid-September into January of '09. Sault Tribe hunters can hunt ducks Oct. 4 through Dec. 2 under DNR rules. Neighboring tribes can take 12 ducks and five geese per day. Sault Tribe hunters can take six ducks and two geese.

Why are Sault Tribe hunters denied the rights we voted to have and are being exercised by neighboring tribes?

Tribal member respects elders

Aniin,

After reading the recent issue of Sault Tribe News, I was upset and appalled to hear that our elders' money is being cut. I am saddened by the state of affairs that our tribe is in. I am 36 years old and have always been proud to state that I am Native American and proud to state I am from the Sault Tribe of Chippewa Indians. I have always tried to respect my elders, respect mother earth, and teach others how to help take care of mother earth and our fellow creatures — I try to live my life in the way I know my ancestors and elders, would approve. It saddens me that one of the first things to be cut, is our elders money. Are we showing respect for our elders by doing such? No! Has everyone on the board forgotten what it truly means to be Native American? There was a time when being on a board was a voluntary position — because you wanted input on something that was important to you and something you cared about and believed in. Now days, it seems everything is about money. The last thing to ever be taken away — or reduced, etc., should be our elder's money. Many of our elders have lived hard lives and rely on this money each year to exist. Let us not forget that these are the same people who have passed on wisdom to each of us, through the years — these are the same people who have passed down tradition, stories, and kept our tribe alive! We should take care of our elders, not take away from them.

Chi Miigwech,
— Julie Mastaw-Dillon
Roanoke, Va.

The next deadline for Win Awenen Nisitotung is Oct. 28.

The newspaper will come out Nov. 7.

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month

BY KRISTIN BELAIR

Stop the cycle of violence in our communities today by raising domestic violence awareness. We need tough law enforcement, aggressive prosecutions, effective prevention programs and available shelters for families in need during times of distress. Domestic violence is not a private matter as it affects us all from school, the community and in the workplace.

Abusers use a number of tactics other than physical violence in order to maintain power and control over their victim, such as threats and intimidation, emotional scarring, isolation and verbal abuse. Estimates range from 960,000 incidents of violence against a current or former spouse, boyfriend or girlfriend per year to 3 million women who are physically abused by their husband or boyfriend per year.

Around the world, at least one in every three women has been beaten, coerced into sex or otherwise abused during her lifetime. Overall, women are less likely to be victims of violent crimes but are five to eight times more likely than men to be victimized by an intimate partner.

Take time now to learn the facts about domestic violence and what you can do to raise awareness in your community.

Jiibay wiikongewin honors our ancestors

BY CECIL E. PAVLAT SR.

As Anishinaabe people we have always remembered and honored our ancestors, our relatives who were here before us. We would honor our family "passed away," whether they be grandfathers, grandmothers, aunties, uncles, brothers, sisters or cousins by blood or clan.

We would also honor those tribal chiefs, spiritual leaders, medicine people and all others who lead important roles within our communities. We would also honor and remember our friends and all of those who contributed to our communities in one way or another.

One of the ways we would do this is by holding a "jiibay wiikongewin," sometimes referred to as a ghost supper or feast. There are many different ways of how this ceremony is done varying from family to family and community to community. There is no wrong way when your intentions are good. Spirits will recognize your intentions and accept your offering.

Often a sacred fire will be lit so that food and tobacco offerings can be made. This is done prior to anyone else eating. Along with this, sometimes those who carry drums and songs are invited to share what they carry. Spirits especially enjoys the sound of the drum and the sacred songs that go with them.

Usually the building, or outdoor area, is smudged along with the participants and feast food prior to eating. It is the medicine, usually one or all of the sacred medicines, giizhik (cedar), weengashk (sweet-grass), mshkadewashk (sage) and aseema (tobacco) we use with which we ask for help, not the person who does the smudging. The person who smudges is only a helper who physically carries the medicines, eagle feathers or whatever sacred items we might use. Anyone can smudge as long as it is not a woman on her moon time.

Some people who still practice this way prepare a feast place where a chair is left empty, but everything is placed there as though someone would sit and eat. This empty seat is there for a spirit to sit. Others may designate someone to eat for the spirit.

When the food is cooked, women on their moon time would not touch any of the food to be eaten. Most times someone else would even get their food to serve them. We have also been taught to have only good thoughts when we cook the jiibay wiikongewin foods.

We also cook what our passed aways enjoyed, for example, my mother liked macaroni and cheese; that is what I would cook for her and other things that other relatives liked. We have also been taught that when we eat for the spirit, we do so in a respectful way of thinking of them and the goodness they brought into our lives; giving thanks for all that we have received and will receive in the future.

These are the things that I have been taught and probably will vary from what others have been taught.

WIC: better nutrition for a brighter future

The Michigan WIC Program is a supplemental nutrition program that provides health supplemental foods (milk, eggs, cheese, dry beans, peanut butter, cereals, juices, and formula) and nutrition counseling for pregnant women, new mothers, infants and children under 5.

Breastfeeding support is also provided.

Numerous studies have shown that pregnant women who participate in WIC have longer pregnancies leading to fewer premature births, have fewer low birth-weight babies, experience fewer fetal and infant deaths, seek prenatal care earlier in pregnancy and consume more of such key nutrients such as iron, protein, calcium and vitamin C. Children enrolled in the WIC Program have a lower prevalence of anemia than those who are not enrolled. One study found that the anemia rate among children at the six month WIC recertification visit was lower than the rate at the initial WIC screening, indicating the positive effect of WIC participation.

Other studies found that 4 and 5-year-olds whose mothers participated in WIC during pregnancy had better vocabulary test scores than children whose mothers had not received WIC benefits. A pregnant woman can earn $25,900 annually and qualify for WIC benefits. A family of three can earn $32,560 (add $6,660 for additional family members).

Call the Chippewa County Health Department at 635-3572 to learn more about WIC or to make an appointment or visit our website at www.chippewahd.com.

95-year-old Fred Olmstead plays poker, slots at Kewadin Casino for past 20 years

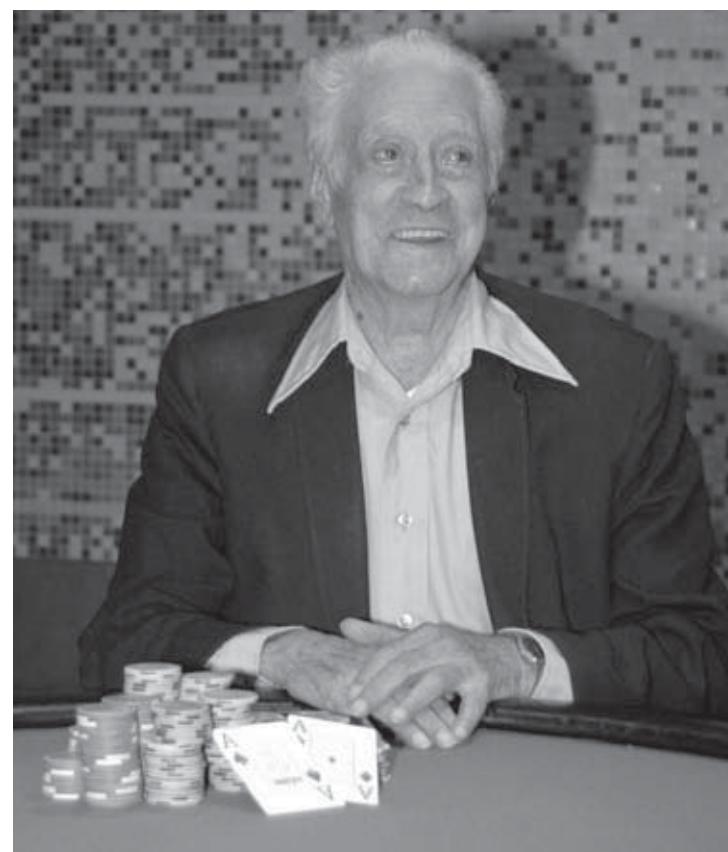

BY BRENDA AUSTIN

Fred Olmstead makes the 90-minute drive north from DeTour, Mich., to Sault Ste. Marie once a week to play poker and try his luck with the slot machines at Kewadin Casino. Now that he is 95, he said he has had to slow down a little bit as he tires easily.

For the past 20 years he has been a casino regular. "Sometimes my luck is good and sometimes it's bad," said Olmstead. "When it's good I stay longer, when it's bad I go home."

On a recent visit he won $200 on the quarter slots and $2,000 playing poker. "That was some night. The dealer spread out the cards, there were 10 players, and told everyone to pick a card. High card wins. No one picked out a face card or ace, I had a 10 so I won. The dealer told me to go to another room and to pick out an 8-ball from the table; there were about 20 of them. Whatever was underneath the 8-ball you won, from $50 to $2,000. I picked one out and won the $2,000. I couldn't believe it."

Although he says he never ate a vegetable in his life, Olmstead has 20/20 vision and is as healthy as a horse. "No one in my family has ever made it to 90. In six months I will be 96," he said. He was born in DeTour on March 9, 1913, and has resided there his whole life.

Olmstead remembers getting his drivers license at the age of 15 and doing most of the driving for the family. "My mother liked to pick berries in the woods. We would go to Raco with a tent and camp and pick blueberries," he said.

A staunch supporter of American-made vehicles, every car he has ever owned was an Oldsmobile.

He met his late wife, Edna Pleva, at a dance in Raber and they began dating. "She wanted to get married right away but she wasn't 18 yet. She told me to ask her parents for their approval but I couldn't ask them because they didn't speak English. They were from Poland. She turned 18 in September and we were married in October, 1938," he said. "No matter where you go in my house you see her picture. I loved that woman; she was beautiful and a good cook. My favorite was mashed potatoes and roast beef. I still have it but now I have to cook it for myself," he said. His wife passed away nine years ago. Together they had four children, Freddy, Shirley, Darryl and the late Charles Olmstead. He has been blessed with four grandchildren; two boys and two girls. He also has two great grandsons and another great grandchild on the way.

His parents, Andrew and Lena Olmstead, had three boys and two girls. When he was a child, no one in DeTour had indoor plumbing and outhouses were common. During the winter coal was used for heat. "You could buy coal for $6 a ton and heat your house for about $60 a winter. I got about 200 gallons of heating oil not too long ago and it cost $800. Isn't that something?" he said.

He still lives in the same house that his brother-in-law helped him build in 1948. "The house was 60 years old on Aug. 2," he said. Through the tribe's elder program he has help with household chores once a week.

Olmstead said he doesn't plan to give up his fairly active lifestyle any time soon. "When you give up you are all done, so I can't give up."

Auger-Perry united in marriage

Dean Auger and Jackie Perry were married on April 11, 2008, at the tribal courthouse in Sault Ste. Marie.

Witnesses for the ceremony were Jackie's daughter, Tashina, who served as maid of honor and Jamie McKerchie, who served as best man, Jackie's parents and friends and family members.

The newlyweds took their honeymoon June 1 camping and hiking at Tahquamenon Falls.

The two families gathered on Sept. 6 for the formal meeting and joining of the couple at their home in Kincheloe. The traditional ceremony began with lighting of the fire, smudging the home and then smudging of the guests. A prayer at the fire was done by Culture Committee Chairperson Jackie Minton, followed with a song by the Mukwa Giizhik Drummers and lead singer, Butch Biron. Following was the passing of an eagle feather from Dean and his uncle, David Blackbeaver, to Jackie's father, Floyd Perry, who gave a tremendous emotional acceptance speech. The drummers and singers appropriately followed with a feather song. A traditional feast ensued, after a plate was presented as a tribute to our ancestors, consisting of salmon, wild rice, fry bread, corn and buffalo jerky and venison jerky. The ceremony wrapped up with the drummers and singers and a final prayer. This was truly a "spiritually moving" gathering and joining of Dean and Jackie Auger's families.

Dean is a slot manager for Sault Tribe and Jackie is a dealer for Sault Tribe. Dean has a daughter, Jole, residing in Escanaba. Jackie has two daughters and a son, Tashina, residing in Rudyard, Lindsey, with the U.S. Coast Guard to be stationed in St. Ignace, and Loren, residing in Sault Ste. Marie.

Legacy of Faith grants advance bishop's new vision

MARQUETTE — Bishop Alexander K. Sample of the Catholic Diocese of Marquette has approved nearly $200,000 in grants from the Legacy of Faith endowment fund. All competitive grant applications were suspended for one year in order to focus grant making on Bishop Sample's new vision for faith formation and education for the Diocesan Church.

In accordance with the endowment guidelines, half of the available grant funds were awarded for Catholic schools, 30 percent for parish faith formation and 10 percent each for Catholic Charities of the Upper Peninsula and the Catholic Action Fund, a bishop's discretionary fund to support new and emerging programs and ministries.

Grants were awarded to each of the nine Catholic schools in the Upper Peninsula for local strategic plan implementation efforts. Many of the schools are using their $7,000 Legacy of Faith grant to enhance academic excellence. Another $36,373 will benefit diocesan-wide efforts to advance all five strategic plan goals for Catholic schools: academic excellence, Catholic identity, marketing and public relations, financial stability and governance.

A Legacy of Faith grant in the amount of $59,688, along with an anonymous donation, is funding the implementation of a new diocesan faith formation curriculum as envisioned by Bishop Sample. It is being used to provide all parishes and missions with printed and electronic copies of the curriculum.

Over 60 percent of the monies will directly benefit the parishes and missions by helping them to purchase the required diocesan textbooks. The remainder of the grant is being used to train all parish priests, pastoral coordinators, faith formation coordinators and catechists on the use of the new curriculum.

A $19,895 grant will help the branch offices of Catholic Charities of the Upper Peninsula provide fee assistance for clients with little or no ability to pay for services. Catholic Charities offices are located in Marquette, Escanaba, Houghton, Iron Mountain, Sault Ste. Marie, Iron River and Ironwood.

Several grants have also been awarded from the Catholic Action Fund. These grants have supported diocesan-wide communication of Bishop Sample's new vision for faith formation and education, a "train the trainers" workshop for a new marriage preparation program for the diocese and expansion and coordination of the SCRIP program, a third source funding mechanism for Catholic schools, whereby retail gift cards are purchased at a discount and sold at face value.

Legacy of Faith is the campaign to build a permanent endowment for the Diocese of Marquette for the purpose of preserving and fostering the Catholic faith for future generations. Indian Friendship Centres open to U.S. citizens

BY RICK SMITH

A terrific optional asset for Sault Tribe members in the eastern Upper Peninsula sits just across the St. Marys River in Sault, Ont. The Indian Friendship Centre at 122 East Street is easy to find and offers many services to all American Indians whether of U.S. or Canadian citizenship.

The centre was incorporated in 1972 as a non-profit organization serving urban and migrating American Indians in the area. The organization moved to the current location in 1995 and expanded in 2003 due to increases in services and clientele. It is affiliated with the Ontario Federation of Indian Friendship Centres, one of 28 such affiliates throughout Ontario.

The Sault, Ont., Indian Friendship Centre offers an impressive array of programs and services for young and old, male and female, individuals and families. The staff offers culturally grounded help with matters of health, education, employment, family support, court assistance, homelessness and other concerns. They can make referrals to mainstream professionals if necessary.

According to the Canadian Sault organization's mission statement, the Indian Friendship

Centre is guided by the teachings given by the Creator of the aboriginal people, which unites people in building a strong, proud community for seven generations. A core value espoused by the centre is the physical, emotional, mental, spiritual and social well being of all.

"All of the staff at the Indian Friendship Centre work hard at providing much needed support in various forms as requested or identified in serving our urban aboriginal community; following the guidelines set forth by funding agencies and balancing the mandate of our centre," said Elizabeth Edgar-Webkamigad, executive director of the Sault organization. "We are all committed to serving the people we do with integrity, honor and respect. We make sure to bring the aspect of accessing the best of the society that we live in while trying to balance the traditional ways of our people."

In their own words, the Ontario Federation of Indian Friendship Centres is a provincial aboriginal organization representing the collective interests of friendship centres in towns and cities throughout the province. The federation administers a number of programs delivered by the local friendship centres in areas such as health, justice, family support, and employment and training. The centres also design and deliver local initiatives in areas such as education, economic development, children's initiatives and cultural awareness.

The centres are non-profit corporations mandated to serve the needs of all aboriginal people regardless of legal definition. This necessitates responding to thousands of aboriginal people requiring culturally sensitive and culturally appropriate services in urban communities.

The mandate is similar to the U.S. Indian Health Service (IHS) policy in which a member of a federally recognized tribe may obtain care at any IHS hospital or clinic if the facility has the staff and capability to provide the medical care.

For more information about the Sault Indian Friendship Centre, visit their Web site (address noted in the photo caption) or call them at (705) 256-5634.

Web site guides kids in healthful fish consumption

BY RICK SMITH

A new Web site established by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency encourages kids to get a parent or teacher to follow the adventures of the Fisher family as they learn about fish and having fish in their diets.

The site is at www.epa.gov/fishadvisories/kids and is geared for children of ages 8 to 12.

"Our new Web site is a fun way for kids and parents to learn about the importance of fish in a healthy diet and how to choose the healthiest fish to eat," said Benjamin H. Grumbles, an EPA assistant administrator, in an official announcement.

Visitors to the site can tag along on trips with the Fisher family as they go camping, grocery shopping and, of course, fishing. Pointers on healthful fish eating are highlights of the family's adventures.

In addition, two types of interactive games are on the site to reinforce and expand the guidance on the site. The fishing games feature allows you to select a character, control a fishing boat and operate the character's rod and reel while realistic images of fish pass beneath the boats of either a fresh water or salt water fishing trip. The game helps with learning fish recognition and remembering health advisories on the fish. The same is true with a selection of three memory games.

A special section reserved for parents offers further and more detailed information about fish advisories.

ITFAP contribution of stocked walleye in St. Marys River fishery population; ITFAP assesses tournament

Editor's Note: This year, Inter-Tribal Fisheries and Assessment Program (ITFAP) handled walleye caught in the walleye tournament on the St. Marys River. This gave ITFAP the opportunity to sample the tournament fish as part of a study to determine the ratio of wild to stocked walleye in the river.

By ITFAP STAFF

ITFAP has been stocking walleye in the St. Marys River since the early 1990s. Gametes for the stocking program are collected each April from adult walleye that spawn in both Munuscong and Potagannissing bays of the St. Marys River (Fig. 1). The fertilized eggs are incubated at our Nunn's Creek or Barbeau Fishery Enhancement facilities in the eastern Upper Peninsula. Within six days of hatching the 0.5-inch long walleye fry are stocked into several 5- to 30-acre rearing ponds near Barbeau. The fry grow rapidly at about 1 millimeter per day from May 15 through July 1 and once the young walleye reach 1.5 inches in length the ponds are drained and the fish are stocked into the St. Marys River.

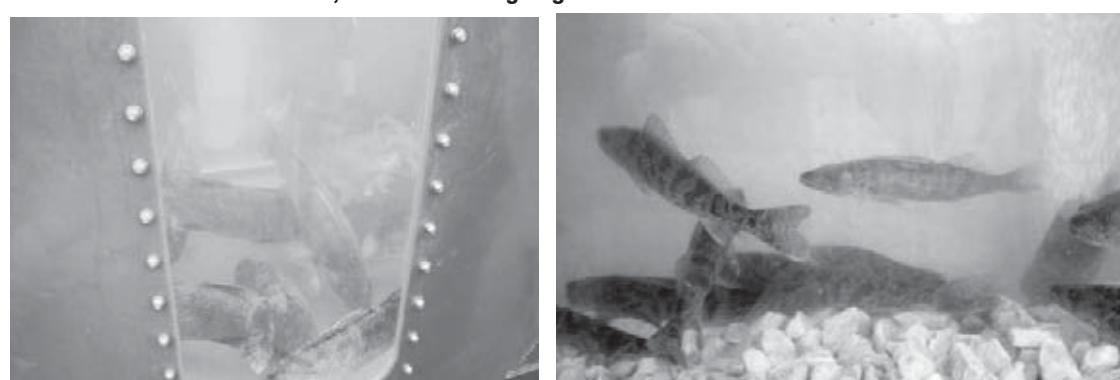

Some of the 1.5-inch long walleye are transferred to a 200-acre rearing pond where they grow to about 6 inches long through October. By late October, the 200-acre pond is drained and the 6-inch walleye are stocked in the St. Marys River and other lakes within the Great Lakes area. We have stocked between 100,000 and 500,000 walleye into the St. Marys River each year since 1993 (Fig. 2).

Walleye are stocked into the St. Marys River to support tribal subsistence fisheries and both tribal and state licensed recreational fisheries. To evaluate success of the stocking program and the contribution of stocked walleyes to fisheries in the river young walleye are marked with oxytetracycline (OTC) before being placed into the rearing ponds. OTC leaves a fluorescent ring on the otolith (ear bone) of the young walleye that can be observed under a microscope when the ear bone is illuminated (Fig. 3). By looking for OTC marks on walleye otoliths we can determine their contribution to the population in the St. Marys River and to fisheries that harvest walleye from the river.

At the recent Professional Walleye Tournament in the St. Marys River, ITFAP's Matt Allard works with LSSU students to handle the tournament walleye catches. One walleye from each catch was sacrificed for assessment for OTC marks, with the fillets going to tribal elders.

Walleye brought in by walleye contestants are cared for by ITFAP, to be released in good condition.

ITFAP brought along a few fingerlings from its rearing ponds.

Carbon footprints and how to calculate them explained

With global warming dominating so many headlines today, it's no surprise that many of us are looking to reduce the amount of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases our activities produce.

By assessing how much pollution each of your individual actions generates—be it setting your thermostat, shopping for groceries, commuting to work or flying somewhere for vacation—you can begin to see how changing a few habits here and there can significantly reduce your overall carbon footprint. Luckily for those of us who want to see how we measure up, there are a number of free online carbon footprint calculators to help figure out just where to start changing.

One of the best is the University of California at Berkeley's Cool Climate Calculator. The free web-based tool takes into account daily driving mileage and grocery and electricity expenses, among other factors, to assign a carbon score, which users can compare to similar households across the 28 largest urban areas in the U.S. Some of the results are surprising. For example, residents of eco-aware San Francisco tend to have bigger carbon footprints than those in more conservative Tampa, Florida. The reason: San Francisco has a higher cost of living and colder, wetter winters (requiring more fossil-fuel derived heat).

Another great carbon footprint calculator is available at EarthLab.com, an online "climate crisis community" that has partnered with Al Gore's Alliance for Climate Protection and other high-profile groups, companies and celebrities to spread the word that individual actions can make a difference in the fight against global warming. Users just take a three-minute survey and get back a carbon footprint score, which they can save and update as they work to reduce their impact.

The site provides some 150 lifestyle change suggestions that will cut carbon emissions—from hanging your clothes to dry to sending postcards instead of letters to taking the bike instead of the car to work a few days a week.

"Our calculator is an important first step in educating people about where they are, then raising their awareness about what they can do to make easy, simple changes that will lower their score and positively impact the planet," said Anna Rising, EarthLab's executive director.

"Our goal isn't about convincing you to buy a hybrid or retrofit your house with solar panels; our goal is to introduce you to easy, simple ways that you as an individual can reduce your carbon footprint," she said.

Other websites, green groups and corporations, including CarbonFootprint.com, CarbonCounter.org, Conservation International, The Nature Conservancy and British Oil Giant BP, among others, also offer carbon calculators on their websites. And CarbonFund.org even allows you to assess your carbon footprint—and then offers you the ability to offset such emissions by investing in clean energy initiatives.

Getting our tribe back on solid ground

DARWIN "JOE" MCCOY, TRIBAL CHAIRMAN

Aanii.

I would like to first take a moment to clarify to our membership that, although we have had to make changes to sustain our tribe, some of these adjustments will be temporary in nature until we can get our tribe back on solid financial ground. This will, however, take time. Included within this month's paper is an article that provides detailed information on the services and employment benefits that have been adjusted and a summary of number of position eliminations.

I ran for chairman to ensure financial and communal stability for our tribe now and in the future. My concern was for not only present generations but that of our children and grandchildren. I did not however, realize the true extent of our tribe's financial problems until taking the helm. I, along with the board of directors and administration, are working to correct the serious issues created by improper management decisions, fiscal irresponsibility and an outright omission of responsible decision making. It has taken a number of years for the tribe to reach its current state. Blaming our problems on the past does not solve them. We are all working together to maintain and ensure membership programs and services, based on need and available resources. This process is time consuming and often unpopular. We, as leaders, cannot make decisions based on whether or not we get your vote in the next election; we have to make decisions based upon what is best for the sustainability and longevity of our tribe. For example; during our restructuring and budget reduction process, we have been forced to eliminate the community-wide Christmas parties that were previously held. While we have canceled FY2008 events as part of necessary cost savings, we are developing a process to assist tribal members who are truly in need of help at this time of the year. Unpopular decisions must be made for the betterment of the tribe.

Our employees are working harder than ever in running our tribe as efficiently as possible. I want to recognize their efforts.

With the restructuring that has occurred, employees in the various departments are taking on additional responsibilities to assist our tribe in moving forward. Often these efforts go unrecognized, but we have a strong workforce and I say "Chi Miigwech" to all of you for your continued commitment and dedication to our tribe. We understand that it is currently not an easy environment to be a part of, and are making every effort to finalize the restructuring that must occur to sustain our tribe.

Since my last report, I have been granted temporary licensure by the Michigan Gaming Control Board and voted on as a member of the Greektown Management Board. I would like to thank Director Dennis McKelvie for stepping down from this board so that I may be on it. I believe my extensive business experience will be an asset to the management board as we strive to maintain this economic venture. For the interim, I will be traveling to Greektown on a weekly basis, and believe this is necessary to protect the tribe's largest economic investment.

I will conclude this month's report by congratulating our Sault Tribe Law Enforcement Department as a whole, and Interim Chief of Police Robert Marchand, on their receipt of "Chippewa County's Best of the Best" Awards. The department was selected the best department in Chippewa County, and Interim Chief Marchand was picked as the best officer in Chippewa County. Congratulations to you all!

Please feel free to contact me with any questions or concerns at jmccoy@saulttribe.net or contact my office at (906) 635-6050.

Miigwech,

Reducing the deficit for the coming year

LANA CAUSLEY, DIRECTOR,
UNIT II

We held our last powwow for the year in Newberry this past weekend and it was a very memorable event. Thank you to everyone who worked very hard in preparing that powwow for the community.

As reported in last month's unit report, the entire governing body and executives have been meeting weekly to reduce our deficit and reorganize our departments. Throughout this entire process, many hard decisions have been made. When the cuts began, we knew that it would not be complete until we reduced for next year as well. The cuts made now will not be completely realized until 2009.

Many changes are happening within our tribe. Throughout the past 20 years, we have increased services beyond our means in a way where we cannot sustain them at this time.

The chairman and the board of directors are making every intent to communicate our financial condition and reorganization to the membership, please refer to the open letter from us in this edition of the paper. I have had many questions and suggestions from many members about the direction our tribe is going. As you are all aware, many other tribes as well as our entire nation are experiencing financially troubled times. There is no question that we will overcome this hardship as long as we stay focused and continue to work together.

I will say that the reductions that have been made are very painful and I personally thank all the members and employees who have been supportive of our moving forward.

In closing, there are two specific items that need to be addressed. There have been rumors that the elders will not receive a payment this year, this is not true. As we reported, it is law that elders will receive an interest payment every year from the Land Claims Fund; therefore, the elders of the tribe will be receiving between $600 and $700 in 2009. We cannot sustain the increased amount that was approved throughout the years.

The other rumor is that our smaller casinos will be closing. The board has not discussed closing any of our casinos. We have worked too hard to get our doors open and frankly, we make a profit at every single casino. In 2007, our smallest casino in Hessel turned a profit of $156,000. To close any door would be going backwards. We are looking for any possible way to increase revenue for operations.

You may see reduction of hours of operation but those are the measures we are taking to become more efficient. We will keep moving forward to secure our services to the members. Please contact me with any questions or concerns that you have.

Baamaaii,
Lana Causley

Director LaPointe reports to the membership

ROBERT LAPONT, DIRECTOR,
UNIT II

I do not like the facts and my opinions that I have had for so long but you should know the truth.

About three or four years ago, I came across a letter the tribal attorney wrote in 2004 to my question "that, yes, the state could confiscate anything belonging to a board member if the tribe fails in their business" so I resigned from the gaming board in Greektown and cannot get information or go to their meetings (a violation of my human rights because the tribe owns Greektown).

As you probably know, the health clinics closed on Oct. 1 — our DeTour office allegedly lost $25,000 last year while the Big Bear Arena lost over a million and the last I knew they upped the recreation costs a bit.

These closures were done by the tribe and not "Bonnie" who is supposed to be the one who gives orders. This is a very bad method of operation. This should have been done only by "Bonnie."

We lost another doctor and nurse over the weekend and two other doctors have plans to leave before spring. Accreditation will be difficult.

We should get about six new cars and drivers to bring elders to the health center. It seems we are trying to lose money and make it up in volume — that doesn't work.

We pay an advertising company $10,000 a week and went seven months with nothing done. Now they put up some signs that look terrible and tell you how many miles to the next town and tribal logo (which means nothing to out of area people) and casino is very small letters that you can't see. I have a local tribal member that would do a good job a lot cheaper.

I also have and had for a long time a Detroit businessman who offered $800 million for Greektown and we never answered his offers but have made a deal with someone for $100 million for 40 percent ownership (evidently Greektown is only worth $250 million. We should have taken the $800 million.)

We pay the state of Michigan an average of $220,000 per day taxes and own a million a week for interest on loans. I expect bad things ahead — maybe before you read this paper.

See inland biologist for gathering permit

PAT RICKLEY, DIRECTOR, UNIT III

Aanii,

It seems like I just finished doing this, how quickly time flies by...There have been some changes, some good, some not so good. The board has been working together putting in long hours trying to do what we feel is best for the tribe as a whole, and it's quite challenging at times. I feel that whenever you put a group of people in the same room for an extreme length of time things tend to heat up, sometimes you just have to agree to disagree or try to meet half way.

Another season is coming to a close. Fall is upon us, although I did say a prayer to the Creator, offered my tobacco and asked for an Indian summer. I hope he heard me. Under Chapter 21 of the Tribal Code you are allowed to gather firewood on state and federal land with a permit from our tribal biologist, Eric Clark, (906) 635-6050. You may take five cords of dead and downed trees on state land and unlimited on federal land.

Deer hunting is on so don't forget your hunter's orange. Also it's the time of year for ghost suppers honoring those who have walked on, so any of you great Anishinaabe hunters and fisherman or even trappers, don't forget to provide for those who prepare those feasts.

Feel free to flag me down with your issues. As some of you know, I try to get them resolved as soon as I can, if possible. You may contact me at (906) 440-5149 or my e-mail address — you're gonna love this — prickley@saulttribe.net.

Unit Reports

Volunteer kid's Christmas parties organizing

SHIRLEY PETOSKY, DIRECTOR, UNIT V

Hello Everyone — there are so many rumors out there that I feel I should address a few.

In our Sept. 5 newspaper, the Elder Advisory Briefs stated that the status of a possible purchase of the gas station and motel in Christmas next to the casino was requested. I received calls asking how the tribe could be doing this with money so tight?

The response was not printed. I said at that meeting there wasn't anything to report — that idea was over with. They plain wanted too much money (this has not been on any agenda for a long time).

No one from the board was able to attend the August meeting of the Elderly Advisory Committee. We had to be present at a very important Monday morning meeting in Sault Ste. Marie.

Also I was asked to attend a meeting in Munising with Bonnie Culfa, Marlene Glaesmann and Dr. Michelle Kroupa-Kulik.

They told me that people had been coming in to the clinic very worried because I was supposed to have said the Munising Clinic would be closed down. That is something I pray will never happen and NO I did not say that. I did say at a Unit 5 meeting that we needed to work hard to keep our clinic going.

Also it was attributed to me that the Christmas Casino would be closed. Again, NOT SO! I DID NOT SAY THAT!

On a happier note, several people are working hard to have a Christmas party in our area for the children. If you can help in any way, let me know and I will pass your name on to the committee, (i.e., small gifts, bars and cookies, sandwiches?).

The highlight of September for the Munising area was the second annual powwow held on Sept. 13.

So many people worked so hard to make the powwow a success. A HUGE THANKS YOU TO EVERYONE! If I've forgotten anyone please let me know and I'll include them next month:

Mary Beth kept a count for us and over 750 people came through the doors.

From Teeny and Honey at the chili shack to Donna, Susie, Cathy, Tom, Don and many others at the fry bread station.

And all the ladies in the kitchen — Darlene, Joanie, Gloria, Karen and their husbands. Anita with the vendors.

The men who stayed to clean fish on Friday and cooked it on Saturday. The ones who came to clean and set up — the ones who stayed to clean and take down.

The people who brought in food and donated the giveaways — to our master of ceremonies, Ted Holappa, and arena director, Cecil Pavlat, the head dancers, the drums, our veterans — and, last but not least by any means, Dolores who saw to it that it all came together.

I hope the pictures Paul took make it in the paper this month.

I also attended the Newberry powwow on Sept. 20 — really a nice turn out. I got to visit with a lot of people. Also got to enjoy the beautiful fall weather.

There are important things being worked on in the tribe. I am sure by now everyone has heard that the land claims money per elder will be a lot smaller amount this coming January 2009 than what was received in 2008. The amount most likely will be $500 to $600. I know that isn't a very happy note to close with. But, we need to put this out so people can plan accordingly.

Thank you,

Tribe needs one vision and a common goal

BERNARD BOUSCHOR, DIRECTOR, UNIT I

Dear tribal members,
This last month has been very difficult for our tribe. The tribal council and our chairman have been working together to deal with one of the most important items on our legislative agenda, the financial crisis of our tribe.

When I took office in July 2008, our tribe was dealing with the largest deficit in our history and our Greektown Casino bankruptcy.

The deficit at the start of 2008 was $15 million. The tribal council and chairman have been able to reduce the deficit by $7 million. If the prior administration had been doing its job and paying attention to the tribe's finances, this, in my opinion, should have never happened.

In 2008, our tribe, after all the restructuring, is left with a deficit, a shortage of $8 million in cash. How do we, the tribal council and chairman, cover the shortfall? The tribe has authorized borrowing $5 million and transferring what little cash reserves we have left to cover the remaining balance of the 2008 deficit.

The good news is we are close to our goal of eliminating the $10 million 2009 deficit. With the restructuring of our tribe by the council and chairman, the tribe has been able to reduce the deficit to $1.5 million. I do expect that we will be able to report that the deficit will be eliminated.

In dealing with the deficit, the tribe has changed how our tribal government operates.

We have reduced staff, closed offices and reduced members' services to deal with the deficit.

I had reported during the election our tribe was in tough financial condition; many members did not or would not believe it. Do you believe it now?

The prior leadership spent our cash reserves and investments, paid little or no attention to our businesses, attacked members and the tribal council and did not report the truth to the members.

You just have to look at Greektown Casino declaring bankruptcy in May 2008 and the tribe reporting the $15 million deficit. Our prior chairman tried to hide this from the tribal members. His chairman campaign was built on promises of services nationwide and on Greektown Casino knowing that we were a bankrupt company and needed court protection. He would do or say anything for a vote.

Our tribe needs to come together with one vision and a common goal. As a newly elected member of the tribal council, I pledge that I will work with the tribal council and chairman to achieve this goal for the betterment of our community.

DENISE CHASE, DIRECTOR, UNIT IV

I continue to receive a high volume of calls regarding the lack of a dental provider in the Manistique dental clinic. The tribe has hired a recruiter to assist in filling the positions for the Manistique and St. Ignace clinics. The Manistique clinic has not had a full-time dentist in a year. The visiting dental providers have seen members during their one or two-week schedules for routine and emergency services. Unfortunately, the temporary provider schedules are sporadic (because of other commitments, they are only available for appointments in one or two-week intervals) and this band-aid effect has not been working out that well, elders and children are again without their dental needs being met. The contracts to hire temporary providers for Manistique and the St. Ignace clinics are in the process of being drawn up by tribal legal staff. The tribe's Legal Department is short staffed at this time, because of recently losing two attorneys who resigned. The urgency for those contracts to be completed has been brought to the attention of the administration and hopefully they will make sure that the contracts for dental/medical providers are prioritized, and even sent out-of-house to be drawn up if necessary until the legal department is back up to full staffing.

Total direct patient care contacts/visits for the Manistique Rural Health Clinic so far from January – August 31, 2008, are 39,007. This number is broken down into these various services provided by the clinic: medical, nursing, lab, dental, optical, pharmacy, traditional medicine, audiology, CHNs, CHTs, diabetes grant program, nutrition and medical reception/clerical contacts. The health clinic has been running under-staffed with a shortage of medical providers and nurses at various times this year. Dr. Kristi Gibson Kusiner was hired and joined the clinic staff in April and has only been working for five months. In July, the physician's assistant resigned and Marlene Glaseman, director of rural health clinics, is in the process of hiring a provider to fill that vacancy.

We also lost an RN in April who resigned and they will be filling that position soon. Amy Westcomb, PAC, from Munising has been seeing patients at our facility in the meantime.

Total direct patient care contacts/visits projected through December 2008 by Marlene Glaseman is: 11,776. This number is broken down into these various services provided by the staff:

Monthly wellness clinics (2 days a month): 274

Labs: 238

Home visits: 346

Office visits: 243

All other: 3,961

(The above direct patient care service numbers are projected based on actual services provided to Escanaba area tribal members January-July 2008.)

The tribal board members and administrative staff have been diligently meeting weekly on reducing our projected $15 million deficits for 2008 and 2009. By restructuring and streamlining our governmental and casino operations, we are now at an $8 million deficit for 2008 and at a $1.8 million deficit for 2009 and are acquiring a $5 million line of credit loan to use for 2008 tribal operations. We will be in the Sault next week to attend another session with our administration staff to go over their recommendations for reducing the deficit even more. There is a membership update from the chairman and the board of directors in this issue of the paper that will explain where the reductions were made.

The tribe received a Tribal Youth Suicide Prevention grant for $500,000. The new award is for youth suicide prevention and was granted for three years. The Sault Tribe Alive Youth Project will employ three full time positions (one project manager and two project assistants)

ACFS was awarded additional LIHEAP funds of $24,000 in September to assist clients who had not yet accessed heating assistance for the current program year of (Oct. 1, 2007, to Sept. 31, 2008).

On October 1st is the start of the LIHEAP Energy Heating Program. Stop in or call your local tribal center to apply or to get more information. Eat healthy and be active: OCTOBER 6 IS CHILD HEALTH DAY

On Oct. 6, the 80th annual Child Health Day, the Federal Health Resources and Services Administration challenges parents, caregivers, teachers, school nurses and all adults who care about kids to address a serious health issue: childhood overweight and obesity.

Recent studies suggest that 1 in 6 U.S. children between 2 and 19 is overweight. Childhood obesity is an even more serious – and growing – health concern for children and adolescents. In less than 30 years, obesity has more than doubled among children ages 2-5 and more than tripled among youth ages 6-11 and adolescents ages 12-19.

Health consequences can be serious. Overweight kids are at risk for asthma, diabetes, heart disease and other chronic conditions.

Fortunately, many times overweight can be reversed or prevented by helping children and adolescents

- Stay active.
- Develop healthy eating habits.

— Make healthy choices.

What is the best way to help? Be a role model. When children see their parents, caregivers and other adults enjoying healthy foods and being physically active, they are more likely to do the same.

Take the Child Health Day pledge. A healthy future is our gift to our children.

I pledge to:

- Be a role model by making healthy choices for myself
- Help children be physically active through everyday play and participation in sports.
- Support children's healthy eating habits.

For more information on keeping our youth healthy, visit www.mchb.hrsa.gov/child-healthday/ or call Sault Tribe Community Health at (906) 632-5210.

Pickford's Snickerdoodles opens smoke-free

PICKFORD — The Chippewa County Substance Abuse Prevention Coalition recently added Snickerdoodles in Pickford to the ever-growing roster of smoke-free restaurants in the state of Michigan. There are now nearly 5,200 smoke-free dining options on www.smokefreemichigan.org, the online smoke-free restaurant guide for Michigan with 43 smoke-free establishments in Chippewa County.

Co-owner Stacy Massey said the smoke-free policy is a personal preference. "Our family members are all non-smokers. And we aren't entirely new to the smoke-free restaurant business."

Greg and Sherry Ledy reopened the Kountry Kitchen Restaurant on Main Street in 1988, an establishment that had been a mainstay in Pickford for more than 60 years. They leased the business for a 2-year period to see if they could make a go of it – offering fresh doughnuts, pastries and pies in addition to homemade soups and sandwiches in smoke-free dining. At that time, the Kountry Kitchen Restaurant was probably the only smoke-free restaurant in the area, if not the county.

Business was successful during the two years the Ledy's leased the Kountry Kitchen Restaurant. Customers respected the no smoking signs and enjoyed the wonderful breakfast and lunch items made from scratch. Despite the success of the smoke-free restaurant, the cost to purchase the business was too excessive, so the Ledy's decided not to purchase or to renew the lease.

"That's when my Mom started to work for Pickford Schools," said Massey. "However, since that time, we've been keeping our eye open for property on M-129, which we felt was more accessible to people traveling through town. We had this vision a long time ago that we'd find just the right property to open up a family business such as Snickerdoodles."

An older home near the intersection of M-129 and Main Street came up for sale soon after Sherry and Greg retired from Pickford Schools. The Massey and Ledy families purchased the property and began remodeling in March 2007. "The building needed a lot of work," said Massey. "We did a lot of it ourselves."

Snickerdoodles opened for business in mid-June. "We cooked and baked until the wee hours of the morning, preparing for opening day," Massey reminisced. "Business has been incredible. We are catering non-stop and have had at least two functions scheduled weekly through August. We have seating for approximately 15, including some outdoor seating. Our menu consists of fresh homemade soups, sandwiches, salads and baked goods. We have a drive-through so we are very busy with take-outs. Customers can also order online by visiting www.snickerdoodlesinc.com. We never thought we'd be this busy."

Donna Norkoli, Community Health educator at the Sault Tribe Health Center, said that a smoke-free policy protects both customers and employees from the health dangers of secondhand smoke while providing financial benefits to the business owner. Furthermore, research shows that smoke-free environments are a primary motivator in helping people quit smoking.

The smoke-free air movement gained momentum soon after the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) classified secondhand smoke as a class A carcinogen in 1992. Ongoing research continues to show that exposure to secondhand smoke is a well-proven cause of disease, including lung cancer, heart disease, respiratory illnesses and other cancers.

More than 17,000 people die every year in Michigan from disease cause by tobacco use and/or secondhand smoke exposure and health care costs directly related to smoking have risen to $3.4 billion.

The 2006 Surgeon General's report declares that breathing any amount of secondhand smoke is harmful and that separate smoking sections and ventilation systems do not offer full protection. The report concludes that eliminating smoking in indoor spaces is the only way to fully protect men, women, and children from the health hazards of secondhand smoke.

For a copy of the Chippewa County Guide to Smoke-free Dining or for help with quitting commercial tobacco use, please call Sault Tribe Community Health at 632-5210 or call your local tribal health center.

Amendments to the tribal juvenile code prohibit minor's possession of commercial tobacco

The Sault Tribe Board of Directors voted on June 17, 2008, to amend Chapter 71 Criminal Offenses and Chapter 36 of the Tribal Juvenile Code to prohibit tobacco use by minors except for religious or ceremonial purposes on tribal property within the Sault Tribe's seven-county service area.

The amendment included revisions to "Criminal Offenses: Under Age Possession of Tobacco by Minor and Delivery of Tobacco to a Minor," and "Juvenile Code: Under Age Possession of Tobacco by a Minor."

A committee chaired by Kim Alford (nee Sakis), Community Health education supervisor, has been working on these amendments since March 2007 to ensure that a policy is in place that will protect the health and welfare of our youth. Because young people are more susceptible to social pressure and nicotine addiction, they deserve guidance through social norms and strong regulations that protect them from the harmful effects of commercial tobacco abuse.

Tobacco addiction starts early. Youth typically start experimenting with tobacco between the ages of 11 and 12 and studies show that Native American youth start even earlier. According to the National Tribal Prevention Network, 90 percent of all adults who smoke took their first puff before the age of 18. Research shows that symptoms of nicotine addiction, including strong urges to smoke or chew tobacco, irritability or unsuccessful quit attempts can appear in youth within days or weeks of taking that first puff of a cigarette or first chew of tobacco. Changes in adolescent brains can be observed after the first exposure to nicotine. Therefore, addiction is more likely to occur during early adolescence when their brains are the most sensitive to the effects of nicotine.

The amendment drafted by the Youth at Risk Committee includes consequences to help educate youth about the dangers of commercial tobacco and teach them about our traditional uses of tobacco (semcaa). Upon first offense the youth will be required to attend one session of tobacco education and to complete one assignment related to tobacco education as well as completing two hours of community service. The second offense will require three, 1-hour weekly educational sessions given by local Youth Education and Activities coordinators. The third offense will require a minimum eight hours of community service. Additional offenses will be handled at the discretion of the court to assign a fine or other penalties.

The Youth at Risk Committee members thank the tribal Board of Directors for helping to protect our tribal youth from a life of commercial tobacco addiction. Tribal leaders and other adults in the community know how addictive commercial tobacco is and how damaging it is to our health. Tobacco policies are a necessary step in modeling healthy behaviors and stopping the trend of youth tobacco abuse.

For more information about these amendments or the work of the Youth at Risk Committee, contact Kim Alford at (906) 632-5210. To receive help with quitting commercial tobacco abuse, please call Sault Tribe Community Health Education at (906) 632-5210.

Tips for managing your energy costs this winter

FROM ACFS

The costs of heating your home can skyrocket during the winter months. The following tips could save you money and make the costs of heating your home more affordable. You can reduce your energy bill by 10 to 15 percent by using a few inexpensive energy saving measures.

Budget Plan — Take advantage of budget plans if your energy supplier offers them. Having a set energy cost each month helps you plan when it comes to monthly budgeting. You will have peace of mind that your energy costs will remain the same from month to month, even if you use your furnace more in some months.

Think Comfort — Comfort tip number one: keep drafts out! A small leak around a door or window can be the equivalent, in terms of air flow, to removing a brick from the side of a house and letting the wind blow through. Seal those gaps and keep winter winds on the outside. If you are a low income household, check with ACFS to see if you qualify for some weatherization or home improvement assistance.

Thermostats — Try keeping your house at a temperature you feel comfortable wearing a sweater. Keep your thermostat set at 70 degrees, or lower during the day or when you are home and lower it at night when you are sleeping. Most people are comfortable sleeping at about 65 to 68 degrees. Try reducing the temperature to 55 or 60 when you are away from the house for more than a few hours. A five degree reduction in the temperature setting for an eight-hour time period can save you up to 12 percent on your energy bill.

Window Shades — Keep shades closed at night to conserve on heat. During the day open shades on sunny windows to take advantage of passive solar heating. Insulate windows and doors you do not use with plastic.

Humidify Your Home — Add humidity. Humid air feels warmer than dry air. You can add humidity by operating a humidifier for comfort or by keeping house plants. Plants clean the air and add moisture to the air at the same time. Putting trays of water on top of the register or radiators also help.

Heat Zones — If you are not using a room, don't heat it. Close off vents to rooms that are used infrequently, and shut the door. Note: Don't try shutting vents if you use a heat pump as closing the vent could harm the heat pump.

Ventilating Fans — Don't over-run kitchen and bathroom ventilation fans. Turn them off as soon as they have done their job, or within 15 minutes. A fan can draw out an entire houseful of heated air in about an hour.

Heating System — Keep your furnace's air filter clean. Make sure you clean or replace the filter at least twice this winter. Keep registers or radiators free of dust and clutter. Make sure they are not blocked by furniture drapers or carpet. You can increase the amount of heat that goes into a room by placing heating resistant radiator reflectors behind the radiator and the exterior wall.

Hot Water — You can reduce your heating cost by using less hot water. Do this by installing low flow showerheads or fixing leaky faucets. When doing laundry, try using warm or cold water rather than hot, and try to wash on large load rather than several small ones. You can also save energy by reducing the temperature of your water heater. Try setting the thermostat to 120 degrees. Insulating your water heater and pipes is another way to save money. Ready made kits are available at hardware stores.

Attic Insulation — Much of the heat escaping homes is lost through the attic. Be sure to close any attic vents or fans during the winter and check on how well the attic is insulated. There should be at least nine inches of fiberglass insulation.

Fireplaces — Make sure your heat isn't going out the chimney. If you have a fireplace, remember to close the damper tightly. You can greatly improve the efficiency of your fireplace by installing tempered glass doors and a heat-air exchange system that blows warmed air back into the room.

Tax Refund — If you receive an income tax refund, try to apply a portion of your refund to your energy costs. Pay any past due amounts which you may owe in order to keep your account in good standing. Energy suppliers will often enter into and honor payment arrangements for accounts that remain in good standing. For those households that must purchase non-metered services such as propane, fuel oil, or wood, consider pre-buying your next fuel delivery to ensure your family will be cozy all winter long.

If you do find that you are having trouble paying your energy bills, please do not wait until you receive a shut-off notice. Contact the company directly to arrange some type of payment plan. Most energy supplies are willing to work out some type of payment agreement.

For those households with elders, disabled family members, or very young children, ask about winter protection plans, which protects against service shut-off during the coldest winter months.

Applications for Energy Assistance offered to low-income households through your local tribal ACFS office will be available Oct. 1, 2008. For more information, please call your local Tribal ACFS office:
